

My Choice Of Career

By:  Anne Setlik

Graphic Designer: Five Major tasks that a graphic designer has to perform are, they have to prepare sketches for projects that they are assigned to do. They select colors, sound, artwork, and photography that they think goes well with the project they are working on. Also for the project, they select the size and arrangement they go in. When they finish they have to consult with the copywriters and there supervisor.

They have to adjust with their client or to meet there deadlines. Therefore, the hours are irregular. Graphic designers that work in large companies usually are more comfortable. Designers in smaller companies or that are self-employed are more stressed and are under more pressure to meet there deadlines. They also have longer hours and more congested areas.

There are 261,000 jobs are available. Other industries that people work in this areas are advertising and related services, printing and related support, newspaper, periodical book, directory publishing. You need a bachelor or a associates degree to enter this job. The speed of growth is 10% from 2006 to 2016. Related occupations are artists and related workers, commercials and industrial designs, fashion designer, floral or interior designer.

Food Production: Five major tasks food producers perform are they have to mix and bake ingredients, convert animal's carcasses to meat, convert chickens to meat, operate to cooking equipment, reduce moisture content in food. Food producers normally work a 40 hr. week and it may include nights. Their surroundings are hot and noisy.

There is 705,000 in the year 2006. They work in animal slaughtering plants, bakers, food production plants. Training includes little or no training. Other occupations that are related are chefs, cooks, and food preparation workers.

Childcare Worker: Childcare workers have to bathe, dress, feed, supervise, and discipline the kids. They normally work long hours and the surrounding is messy and crazy. There was 1.4 million jobs in 2006 for the childcare worker business. They work in their homes but mainly in educational facilities. To enter into this job you need a little more than a high school diploma. Related Jobs are teachers assistant and a teacher.

